

To Whom It May Concern:

Anthony Rogers was a student here at Coding Campus. He recently completed our course in Django Web Development.

I was able to work with him in some of his projects, but mostly as a mentor in his employment search here at Coding Campus. I am impressed with how receptive he was during his time here and the effort he put both in understanding the fundamentals and concepts taught in the course, and in ensuring that he is a marketable developer.

I believe that Anthony can thrive in any role that he is given and has proven to us here at Coding Campus that grit is a key trait in becoming a world-class developer.

I would recommend Anthony Rogers in any team that needs a creative and hardworking member.

Sincerely,

Mark-Anthony Torrocha
